

Information Technology (IT)

Drawing on deep expertise that applies to the financial services industry specifically, and the technology industry generally, Bressler helps clients navigate the critical and ever-changing business, legal and regulatory issues associated with technology in the financial services industry. Our advice and counsel is guided by our extensive experience in financial services, technology, data protection, and cyber security, as well as our understanding of how industry-specific practices and regulations affect the implementation of technology solutions.

Our Technology team is comprised of a dedicated team of attorneys with diverse backgrounds and experience in all areas of the law which affect financial institutions, technology, emerging growth companies, and other business entities. Our Information Technology team brings to bear the most specialized team of legal professionals to advise on a full range of services including intellectual property, data privacy, mergers and acquisitions, capital markets, financing, fintech, financial crime compliance, media and telecommunications, artificial intelligence, dispute resolution, general litigation, licensing, regulatory and compliance matters, and labor and employment issues.

At Bressler, our attorneys think like entrepreneurs, offering practical, strategic and solution-oriented approaches to the most complex legal issues. We combine a client service team of talented technology professionals, with an understanding of each client's business and markets, to provide efficient, effective and responsive services.
