646.837.5123 | amartinez@hsgllp.com

Adán Martínez's practice focuses on complex commercial litigation. He brings a wealth of experience litigating matters in both the New York state and federal courts, and particular experience in employment-related disputes. He has also researched and advocated for clients in a variety of immigration matters.

Before joining Holwell Shuster & Goldberg, Adán served as a litigation associate at a prominent national plaintiffs' employment law firm. He received a master of environmental science degree from Yale and spent several years managing vegetable and livestock farms, including a sophisticated tomato greenhouse operation in Vermont. He is fluent in Spanish and has conversational proficiency in Portuguese.
